Content:

1  Know how mental wellbeing affects individuals and communities

1.1  Aspects of mental wellbeing:

Mental wellbeing is a positive state of mind that enables an individual to feel good and function well.

Definitions such as the WHO definition of health (2007), WHO definition of mental health (2013) and HM Government definition of mental wellbeing (2011 in 'No Health Without Mental Health').

The models of wellbeing which are explored are the Dual Continuum model of mental wellbeing and the way in which it builds upon the Single Continuum model and Friedli’s Dynamic Model of Mental Wellbeing.

Aspects of wellbeing such as: happiness and life satisfaction, good relationships with others, self-realisation and self-esteem, resilience, peace of mind, self-awareness, confidence, control over own life and the environments an individual lives and works in, financial security.

Ways in which high and low levels of mental wellbeing manifest themselves, the relationship between mental wellbeing and mental illness and the difference between those terms. The impact of stigma on the wellbeing of those experiencing poor mental health or mental illness, and the way it increases difficulty in seeking support.

1.2  The importance of mental wellbeing for the individual:

How mental wellbeing enables an individual to feel good and function well.

Interaction between mental wellbeing and aspects of physical, social, spiritual, and emotional health such as general health, life expectancy and rates of illness, self-confidence, esteem, optimism, contentment, sense of belonging, meaning and purpose.

Interaction between low mental wellbeing and aspects of physical, social, spiritual, and emotional health such as the effect on long term conditions, stress, anxiety, hopelessness, loneliness, despair, depression, loss of meaning, mental health problems, drug and alcohol misuse, use of stimulants, smoking, eating disorders and disordered gambling.

Possible effect of mental wellbeing on educational outcomes, earning and relationships.

1.3  How the community can affect and be affected by mental wellbeing:

How an individual’s mental wellbeing and the communities that they are part of can interact, having a positive or negative impact upon the individual and/or the community.

Communities to include the workplace, educational establishments, local neighbourhoods, spiritual, social networks and online platforms.

Effect of poor mental wellbeing in a community on social cohesion, morale, and vulnerability.

Effect on mental wellbeing of the availability of amenities and public services, employment opportunities, levels of safety/security, quality of housing, support networks and social networks.

2 Know how mental wellbeing can be improved and maintained

2.1 Guidance for improving and maintaining mental wellbeing:

Effect of nutrition, sleep, exercise, physical health, personal and social interaction and social media.

Impact of supportive personal relationships, strong and inclusive communities, good health, financial and personal security, rewarding employment, and a healthy and attractive environment.

2.2 Methods for the promotion of mental wellbeing:

Need to ensure that an individual’s basic needs are met, that individuals have a sense of purpose, that they feel able to achieve important personal goals and participate in society.

Methods for achieving this such as five ways to mental wellbeing, relaxation and mindfulness.

2.3 Applications of mental wellbeing in practical situations:

What individuals could do in practice to improve their own mental wellbeing, improve the mental well being of others and raise awareness of mental wellbeing, such as ‘Five ways to Wellbeing’ and ‘Ten keys for happiness’

Assessment:

The knowledge and understanding of the candidates will be by a multiple-choice examination provided by RSPH. A candidate who is able to satisfy the learning outcomes will achieve a score of at least 14 out of 20 in the examination. Strong performance in some areas of the qualification content may compensate for poorer performance in other areas.
